

The purpose of this special council meeting is only to vote on the basic description of the elected city attorney's position in 2019-R01A. This is not a rehash of the referendum vote and results. That is over, except for implementation of the change it requires and benefit from lessons learned. No matter which side you were on, it is time to close the book and move on. Be adult and accept that it is over. It is time to adjust to the required change. A person who cannot do this is in danger of becoming ineffective and eventually, insignificant. The Charter Review Commission (CRC) will deal with the details necessary to implement this change. The Mayor feels that the members of that commission are intelligent, informed and experienced. They were approved by City Council vote. Let the CRC do its work. Public comment, council review and vote will come when the revision is complete. There are too many other issues that require attention in the city. Put this in the proper perspective. Will the sun still rise tomorrow morning if you move on? Respecting religious beliefs, when you are called to give an accounting of your life, will this be mentioned? In plain speech, there is nothing to be gained in beating a dead horse.
